

CRUSH SERBS UNLESS AID COMES SOON

TEUTON-BULGARIAN VICE
THREATENS TO ANNHILATE
SERB ARMIES WITHIN
SHORT TIME.

MAKING BRAVE STAND

Officers of Allies Claim Serbians Are Resisting Valiantly and Suffer
Most From Bulgarian Attack.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, Oct. 22.—Serbia's military position is critical. Hammered by superior forces on both sides, her armies are threatened with being crushed as no army has been crushed during the war.

Not only are these facts admitted in England, France and Russia, but they are reflected in official Serbian statements. The key to escape from this situation is the speed with which France and England can throw forces north from Saloniki in hope of relieving pressure from Austrians and Germans in the north and Bulgarians in the east.

Bulgarian Attack Menaces.
The Bulgarians are now battling under the eyes of King Ferdinand. Notwithstanding the presumably superior artillery of the Austrians and Germans, it is the flank attack by the Bulgarians which seems the most menacing to the Serbians.

At a few places the Teutons as much as twenty miles south of the Danube. In fact, the ground gained averaged a depth of only ten miles. The Bulgarians for their part are displaying tremendous energy, indicative of carefully laid plans preceding the declaration of war.

With twenty miles of the Nish-Saloniki railway in their hands, the Bulgarians have a strategic advantage which will be difficult to overcome. The movement of entire troops from Saloniki are still unknown to the public, but it is a considerable force has been detached for the task of doing for Serbia what England attempted to do for Belgium, it must be heard from soon.

It is reported that Turkish cavalry is co-operating with the Bulgarians and that a great battle is raging at the Macedonian town of Veleze, where Serbia won a victory over the Turks in the Balkan war of 1912. According to an unofficial report the Bulgarians have taken the town.

Riga's Position Critical.
On morning of the long eastern front the Russians seem to be in the ascendancy, at both Petrograd and Berlin emphasize the increasing danger of Riga's position. From the southwest the Germans are marching on the city of Oliva, which is only twelve miles from Riga. They are also increasing their hold along the Dvina river to the southeast of the city, being in that quarter within eight miles of their border. The Russians assert that German attacks in the region of Oliva were repulsed, but the Germans are bombarding the Riga-Dvinsk railway.

According to dispatches from Christiana, the Russian port of Archangel already has been closed by ice. If the ice continues to increase, the means of bringing in supplies unless ice breakers are able to work successfully.

Teuton Losses 60,000.
A dispatch reaching London from Nish today, says official announcement has been made at the Serbian capital that the losses of the Austro-German forces in the Balkan war of 1912 were dead, wounded and prisoners. The Serbians are said to have repulsed the invaders.

Prairie Serb Defense.
Saloniki, Greece, Oct. 20, via Paris, Oct. 22.—Officers of the French and British expeditionary forces in the Balkans, who have returned to Saloniki from the Serbian front, assert that notwithstanding the odds against which they are fighting, the Serbians are not discouraged.

I would advise you to let ten cents that Serbia will be crushed, said one of these officers.

Last Thursday we were north of Italia in the sector where the Austrians and Germans are making their forward attack. It took them nine days to gain eight miles on that front.

We saw long lines of Prussian and Austrian prisoners going to the rear. The Serbian line is absolutely unbroken. The Serbians are fighting every inch of the way.

Only five cannon of the allies and eight of the Serbians were lost around Belgrade, notwithstanding German reports. Seven of these cannon were destroyed before the city was captured.

Bulgarians Gain Slowly.
The Bulgarians occupied Pirat, on a route to Nish. They hope to effect a junction with the Germans. At the present rate of progress it will be done before the end of the month.

We left Nish on Sunday. At that time the only interruption to railroad traffic was that occasioned by the presence of French troops from Saloniki. The French troops took them nine days to gain eight miles on that front.

Since that time the Serbian war office has acknowledged that the Bulgarians had cut the Saloniki-Nish railroad in two places.

BARBED WIRE PLAYS A BIG PART IN WAR

Allies Must Make Continuous Bombardment Before Taking Advance Against Their Foes.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
London, Oct. 22.—The part barbed wire plays in the war is graphically portrayed in letters from the front just before the battle September 25, when the Allies after an almost continuous bombardment of three days made their first appreciable advance since the Marne.

To prepare for the infantry advance at only three points, it was necessary to expend thousands of tons of shrapnel and high explosive projectiles along practically the whole line from the sea to the Vosges. This was the Germans kept in ignorance of what particular sections were to be attacked.

This is the third day of the bombardment, says a correspondent. "Our artillery fire is fearful. By point, section by section the trenches barbed wire has been pelted with a hurricane of shells. Rifle and machine-gun fire has been absent except for straggling bursts.

"Looking out over the German lines today, not one sign of life could be seen. Not even trench periscopes were hoisted out of the parapets to indicate the watchfulness of the enemy. Doubtless the German infantry is packed away in its deepest dug-outs. The shells have done their best to search them out, and must have made them extremely uncomfortable.

"The spectacle from our side has been wonderful, awe-inspiring. To the Germans it must have been awful. The tremendous shells of our heavy artillery were bursting in the enemy's geyers of flame and smoke and dust on the slag heap near Lens, among the houses of the villages and along the lines of the trenches. Lydite from the howitzers blasted into the communication trenches, blew down their parapets and broke down their sides; and shrapnel rained savagely and unceasingly at the masses of barbed wire and shrapnel protecting the enemy's front.

"The amount of wire used by the Germans is stupendous. No matter what part of the front one visits the same thing is found—thickets, hedge, piles of wire, running in wide strips before every trench, arranged in heaps so thick they look absolutely solid round the dug-outs and in the more or less numerous gaps.

"It would be utterly impossible for any infantry to advance under fire and cut their way through. Shrapnel can do a patch, but only after days of constant firing.

"Because the Germans know quite well that wire-cutting with shrapnel is a preparation for an advance, many of the wire must be demolished by constant firing.

"Throughout today the batteries have been cutting wide stretches of wire, while the divisions have been pounding the trenches. Every H. H. shell that fell threw up an enormous column of thick dust that hung heavily and drifted slowly down wind.

"The German front, the pelting storms of shrapnel swept clouds of dust before them to mingle with the smoke of the bursting shells. At times white sections of the German lines were indicated by the slow moving curtain of dust and smoke, and through the haze could be seen the vivid orange flame of still more bursting shells and springing clouds and pillars of still denser smoke and dust.

"The following thunder of the guns, the shrieks and screams and whistlings and rumble of passing shells, the crash and growl and thump of the bursts have never ceased all day. Even now, after dark, a steady volume of fire descends on the German lines, the long roll of distant guns, the sharper kicked-biscuit bangs of the nearer batteries, the rumbling and boom of the shrapnel still continue.

"The dark sky flickers and winks all round the horizon from the gun flashes. As far as the eye can see to the north these flashes tell the story of the artillery's ceaseless activity along the battle front; as far as the ear can catch them to the south, the roll and rumble and rattle of the guns tell the same tale.

"Whatever is to come on the morrow—if it is the big advance at last—the British army is ready and eager for it."

GET BIG RUSS ORDER AT ARKANSAS MILLS

Red Oak Timber for Railroad Ties for Riga-Moscow Road Will be Furnished.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 22.—Arkansas lumber mills will furnish approximately 300,000,000 feet of red oak timber to the Russian government within the next few weeks, it was announced here today. The last of last year, placed his services at the disposal of General Botha. Contests for forty-two seats are still undecided. Returns from the rural districts, however, are overwhelmingly in favor of the premier. Witthagen, professor Hes Fremantle, a lieutenant of 1861. At Paarl, a Dutch center, former Premier Marthas of today, Colonel Picard, chairman of the day, was selected by a majority of two to one. At Losberg the premier received 1451 votes against 783. Returns from the States there will be no further interruption of the trial. A verdict is expected next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Twenty witnesses were interrogated. Among them were a keeper, a doctor, a physician, a pharmacist, a milkman and the owner of the house in which the Charltons were living at the time Mrs. Charlton met her death. The witnesses gave contradictory testimony concerning the mode of life of the Charltons and their quarrels.

MINING ENGINEER DIES ON NORTHWESTERN TRAIN
FROM HERE LAST NIGHT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madison, Oct. 22.—C. A. Hall, a mining engineer, whose home is believed to have been in Albany, New York, died on a Northwestern train between Janesville and Madison last night. He was on his way from San Antonio, Tex., to Rochester, Minn.

NEW YORK PROTESTS NIGHT SCHOOL CLOSE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, Oct. 22.—Hundreds of students of the evening high schools gathered at the city hall today in protest at the board of estimates, against the threatened closing of night schools for lack of a $270,000 appropriation. Banners were carried by various delegations. Mayor Mitchell was loudly cheered as he passed through the crowd despite the fact he had disapproved of an issue of special revenue bonds to raise the needed money.

Warns Concerning Rumors.
The French general staff has issued a warning against rumors either of "bloody defeat or brilliant victories." It points out that in many instances the same names are given to various localities. As an instance of the confusion resulting from this fact is the widespread report that the allies' troops had captured the city of Strumli, in southern Bulgaria, whereas in fact the skirmish occurred at Strumli station, far to the west of the city.

HOW SERBIA'S FOES AND FRIENDS MOVE TO ATTACK AND DEFENSE

This map shows the most important strategic point in Serbia, the railroad from Belgrade through Nish and Uskub, to Salonika, as well as other points—the mountains and river valleys, over which an Austrian and German attack must pass, the point near Tern, where a Bulgarian attack in force might cut the railroad, and the avenues by which reinforcements may reach the Serbs, if caught between two fires—Austrian and German.

GERMANS WRATHFUL AS BELGIAN WOMEN REFUSE ARMY WORK

And Governor of Province Makes Town Pay Penalty and Sends Women to Germany as Captives.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Paris, Oct. 22.—A correspondent of the Havas News agency telegraphing from Hazebroeck yesterday, said the town of Hazebroeck, Belgium, is being punished by the German government because the women of that locality refuse to do military work for the Germans. Twenty-nine women, he said, have been sent to Germany as prisoners.

The Belgian food committee has been forbidden to supply Hazebroeck with food," the dispatch adds.

UNIONISTS CERTAIN OF SAFE MAJORITY

Sure of Substantial Representation in Assembly of Union of South Africa.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Oct. 22.—The followers of the premier, General Louis Botha, and the unionists who are supporting the premier, are assured of a safe majority in the house of assembly in Union of South Africa. The nationalists who opposed the military operations against German southwest Africa and are attempting to defeat the plans to dispatch a contingent of Union forces to Europe, thus far have obtained only twenty-one votes, mostly in the Free State. Their victories, however, are overwhelmingly in favor of General Hertzog, one of the premier's bitterest opponents. He is regarded as the most influential Boer general, and the chief of the last year, placed his services at the disposal of General Botha. Contests for forty-two seats are still undecided. Returns from the rural districts, however, are overwhelmingly in favor of the premier. Witthagen, professor Hes Fremantle, a lieutenant of 1861. At Paarl, a Dutch center, former Premier Marthas of today, Colonel Picard, chairman of the day, was selected by a majority of two to one. At Losberg the premier received 1451 votes against 783. PORTER CHARLTON
TRIAL CONTINUES

Alleged Como Lake Murderer of American Wife Heard Witnesses Conflic

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Como, Italy, Oct. 22.—The trial of Porter Charlton on charge of having murdered his wife was resumed today. Colonel Picard, chief counsel, was present, although he has not completely recovered from his illness. Charlton's physical condition has improved, and it is thought there will be no further interruption of the trial. A verdict is expected next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Twenty witnesses were interrogated. Among them were a keeper, a doctor, a physician, a pharmacist, a milkman and the owner of the house in which the Charltons were living at the time Mrs. Charlton met her death. The witnesses gave contradictory testimony concerning the mode of life of the Charltons and their quarrels.

UNABLE TO PREVENT NURSE'S EXECUTION

Brand Whitlock's Report Shows Efforts to Save British Woman From Death.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
London, Oct. 22.—The full report of the circumstances of the condemnation and execution of Miss Edith Cavell, an English woman and head of a nursing school in Brussels, for helping English, French and Belgian soldiers to escape from Belgium, made by Brand Whitlock, American minister at Brussels, to Walter H. Page, the American ambassador in London, was issued by the British government Thursday night.

How the secretary of the American legation, Hugh S. Gibson, sought out the German governor, Von der Lancken, late in night before the execution, and, with the Spanish minister, pleaded with the governor and the German officers for the woman's life, is graphically related in a memorandum from Mr. Gibson. This document makes reference to an apparent lack of good faith on the part of the German authorities in failing to keep their promise to inform the American minister fully of the trial and sentence.

Efforts Are in Vain.
Minister Whitlock telegraphed to Ambassador Page on Oct. 12: "Miss Cavell, sentenced yesterday and executed at 2 o'clock this morning, despite our best efforts, continued until the last moment."

Miss Whitlock's final appeal was in the form of a note sent by a messenger late on the night of Oct. 11 to Gov. von der Lancken, reading as follows: "My Dear Baron: I am too sick to present my request myself, but I appeal to your generosity of heart to support it and save from death this unhappy woman. Have pity on her! Yours truly, BRAND WHITLOCK."

Mr. Whitlock also stated that Miss Cavell had nursed German soldiers. Secretary Gibson's report says that Cavell, the English nurse, was a civilian, and that she was not a British subject. The American legation would be fully informed of the developments in the case, and continues: "Despite these assurances, we made repeated inquiries in the course of the day, the last one being at 6:20 p. m. Mr. Conrad then stated that sentence had not been pronounced yet."

At 8:30 it was learned from an outside source that sentence had been passed in the course of the afternoon before the last conversation with Mr. Conrad, and that execution would take place during the night.

Miss Cavell was prosecuted for having helped English and French soldiers, as well as Belgian young men, to escape from Belgium. She admitted, by signing a statement before the day of the trial and by public acknowledgement in court, that she was guilty of the charges.

JANESVILLE CHOSEN FOR NEXT MEETING

King's Daughters in Session at Sheboygan Will Hold 1916 Convention in This City.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Sheboygan, Wis., Oct. 22.—The state convention of King's Daughters closed today with the selection of Janesville for the 1916 convention. The officers elected were: President—Mrs. E. M. Parmelee, Sheboygan; vice president, Mrs. L. G. Catoble, Janesville; secretary, Miss Jennie Schrage; treasurer, Mrs. L. C. Chambers, Milton Junction; council member for Wisconsin, Mrs. Robert E. Reiss, Sheboygan.

BRITISH SUBSEAS ACTIVE IN BALTIC

Stockholm, Oct. 22.—The British submarine campaign against German shipping in the Baltic is being carried on actively. The sinking of four more German steamships is reported: The Hermosand, 1,200 tons; Plauen, 4,200 tons; Rendsburg, 4,600 tons; and Electra, 1,300 tons.

COUNTY BOARD HEAD BALKS PLAN TO USE CONVICTS ON ROADS

Chairman of Outagamie County Will Not Permit Jailbirds to Repair County Highways.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Appleton, Oct. 22.—"I shall do all within my power to prevent convict labor being used on roads in Outagamie county," said John Tracy, chairman of the county board, today. He gave as his reason they are a poor class of labor, men who are lazy and crooks, saying it takes labor away from men of the county, prevents merchants from selling goods, and the women are in danger of assault.

WIFE SAVES HUSBAND AS GREASERS ATTACK

Texas Woman Sees Husband Shot in Back, Wrenches Knife From Bandit and Gives Man Aid.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
San Marcos, Tex., Oct. 22.—If Alfred Wilke, a Martindale rancher, recovers from an attack last night by three Mexicans, he will owe his life to the bravery and physical prowess of his wife.

Mrs. Wilke wrested a knife from one of the Mexicans and threw it to her husband, who killed one of his attackers. Then, though suffering from a knife wound, she got a shot gun and killed one of the others. The third escaped. The Mexicans asked Wilke for work, and when he refused shot him three times in the back. It was then that Mrs. Wilke came to his aid. Wilke's condition is serious, but he may live. Mrs. Wilke's recovery is certain.

POSITION OF U. S. IN BORDER RAIDS

"Officials" at Washington Seem to Have Very Weak-kneed Idea of Conditions.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, Oct. 23.—Officials explained today that the army was doing all it legally could to check the border bandit raids. The situation, they said, was not a military one, but a civil one under the jurisdiction of Texas. As it is, the troops are acting beyond a rigid interpretation of their power in aiding in the pursuit of raiders. War department officials, however, will give every possible aid to the civil authorities in protecting towns and ranches.

SHELLING OF OSTEND CAUSED GREAT LOSS

Recent Bombardment of Belgian Port Held by Germans Had More Results Than Reported.

Amsterdam, Oct. 22.—Much damage was done in Ostend on the Belgian coast in the recent bombardment by British warships, according to a dispatch. The Maritime railway station, the lighthouse, and hotel Des Thermes, a favorite haunt of German officers, were destroyed, as were many large warehouses.

MEXICAN CHIEF WARS ON RAVAGING BANDS

Brownsville, Oct. 22.—An active campaign against bandits on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande by General Emilio Lopez, Carranza commander in Matamoros, was promised today by Jose Z. Garza, Carranza consul here. Mr. Garza said General Lopez had requested more troops in order to handle the Mexican side of the raid.

PORTO RICO SEEKS TO SOLVE PROBLEM OF BIG POPULATION

Deportation to Santo Domingo Suggested by Governor Yager in Address at Lake Mohonk.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Porto Rico is becoming so overcrowded that, considering the area and industrial development, it is one of the most densely populated regions in the whole world, according to Governor Arthur Yager of Porto Rico, who addressed the Lake Mohonk conference on Indians and Other Dependence Peoples today, asserting that the only effective remedy for the situation was the transferring of large numbers of Porto Ricans to some other region. He suggested Santo Domingo, and went so far as to suggest the possible annexation of Santo Domingo to the United States, but he believed a treaty arrangement whereby Porto Ricans could emigrate to Santo Domingo would be the preferable solution.

Island Overcrowded.
After calling attention to the excessive population of Porto Rico, approximately one and one-quarter millions, Governor Yager said: "It seems to me that those of us who are responsible for the future of the island should face this problem now. In my judgment it is not only important but it is urgent with the population already pressing hard upon the means of employment, if any unexpected calamity should befall any instance of the island's industries there would result a serious suffering among the laboring people of Porto Rico than the Insular Government could possibly relieve with the means at its command. If, for example, a cyclone should devastate the coffee plantations, as actually happened in 1899, the situation might become very critical."

"Or, if as now seems certain, under the recent tariff law, the protective duty on sugar should be abolished, and the decline of that great industry, which everybody predicts should actually take place, the things alone will not solve the problem."

"It is a great biological law that we are confronted with and we can neither alter nor resist it. Education, bank legislation, land legislation, bank legislation may all help, but these measures must be supplemented by furnishing some means of relief from the oncoming crowd of surplus population if we are to reach a real remedy."

After explaining that the need of emigration was a real idea, and that 5,000 Porto Ricans were taken to the Hawaiian Islands in 1901, and that others had been taken to Mexico, he said that the government had failed chiefly because there had been no sifting or selection of the emigrants. Governor Yager asserted that Santo Domingo offered the most promising field for placing a Porto Rican colony if satisfactory arrangements could be made with that country.

Advocates Citizenship.
"In discussing the political problems in Porto Rico Governor Yager urged the passage of a new Organic Act to take the place of the temporary Foraker Act, passed by congress in 1900 and which went into effect in 1901."

"This new organic act should grant to the people of Porto Rico collective citizenship in the United States," he said. "The people of Porto Rico would go so far toward rendering satisfaction and difficulty in Porto Rico as this simple grant of citizenship. And those that would be attended with so little cost and risk."

"People speak of citizenship as a 'privilege.' To my mind it is not a privilege at all, but a right. It is the necessary complement of sovereignty and should go with the flag. Wherever the American flag is permanently planted over any territory the people of that territory should be made citizens. The people of Porto Rico must obey all the laws of the United States, pay taxes, are liable to military service, and they are citizens. They must have the right to vote for any officer of the government or anything else. In the United States there are no citizens who have not the privilege of the suffrage, and those who have. The people of the District of Columbia never have had the privilege to vote for anybody or anything else. They are citizens. Most of the negroes of the south, the minors of both sexes, and as yet an immense majority of the women of the country are not citizens. And yet no one would think of excluding these classes from the rights of citizenship."

LEADERS IN STEEL INDUSTRY CONVENE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 22.—Between four hundred and five hundred of the nation's leaders in the steel industry here today attending the fall meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute. Judge Albert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, delivered the address of welcome. This afternoon papers will be read by half dozen of the leading steel men of the country on commercial and technical subjects connected with the iron and steel industry. Tonight a banquet will be held at the hotel. Saturday will be devoted to sight seeing.

CANADIAN LUMBERMEN MAY EMPLOY PRISONERS NOW HELD IN DOMINION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 22.—Application for the employment of war prisoners in Canada, has been made to the Dominion government by New Brunswick lumbermen. Labor is scarce in Canada and lumbermen claim they cannot get men for the work. They say the Germans made their prisoners work and there is no reason why six thousand Germans and Austrians held in Canada should not be set to work. The application has not yet been dealt with by the government.

Drive Back Germans.
Paris, Oct. 22.—German troops yesterday evening made an unsuccessful attack upon certain French positions near Divionch, according to an official announcement.

YAQUI INDIAN BAND MASSACRE SOLDIERS

Small Detachment of Mexican Troops Ambushed and Forty-four Out of Forty-six Killed.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Topolobampo, Mexico, Oct. 21, via radio to San Antonio, Cal., Oct. 22.—A detachment of troops has been ambushed by Yaqui Indians between the plantation of the United Sugar company, at Los Mochis, and San Blas Simion, according to reports received here today, and forty-four of the forty-six soldiers were killed.

The Indians then piled the bodies on a railroad trestle and set fire to the latter, destroying all. The band consisted of one hundred and fifty Indians.

The Indians are now reported crossing the Rio Yaqui and moving toward one of the United Sugar company's plantations at Aguilas, about nine miles from Los Mochis. Carranza troops have been sent from Los Mochis to meet them. The latest reports state that conditions are quiet at Los Mochis.

General Dieguez, in command of the Carranza troops in Sonora and Sonora, is holding a conference with the Yaqui chief and the necessary steps will be taken in an attempt to control the Indian situation.

Telegraphic communication has been re-established between Guaymas and Mazatlan for the first time in almost three years.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The 28th regiment of infantry has been ordered from Galveston to Harlingen, Texas, by the war department as a result of the renewed bandit raids on Texas border towns.

MOBILIZATION IS MOTTO OF NEW BRITISH CHURCH

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, Oct. 22.—"Mobilization" is the motto of the Free Church movement in Great Britain, which is planning to prevent overlapping in the rural districts. The following thirteen denominations are co-operating: Wesleyan Methodists, Congregationalists, Baptist, United Methodists, Calvinistic Methodists, Presbyterian Church of England, Wesleyan Reform Union, Independent Methodist Church, Countess of Huntingdon Connection, Moravian Church, Churches of Christ, Disciples of Christ and Society of Friends.

Delegates recently met and passed this resolution which suggests the spirit of the movement: "That this conference composed of the specially appointed representatives of the Free Churches of England and Wales, is deeply convinced that there is urgent need to promote closer union between the Evangelical Free Churches of the country in order to increase the effectiveness of their spiritual witness, to prevent overlapping, and to make more adequate provision for the needs of great population centers."

Therefore, appoints a provisional committee to prepare a report setting forth the facts and suggesting the preliminary steps that should be taken in regard to the whole subject. The report to be presented at a subsequent meeting of the conference."

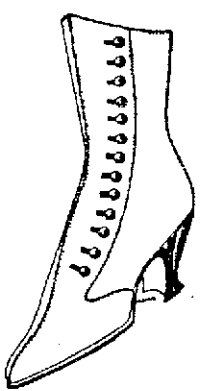

Some of the foremost leaders of the Evangelical churches are devoting great efforts to this movement which in a way is akin to the movement which resulted in 1908 in the union of the Free Church and the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland.

SINGS SEVERAL SONGS

Former Janesville Woman, Now Famed as Song Writer, Delights Young People With Talk and Recital.

In a breathless hush five hundred pupils at the high school waited the speech of Mrs. Carrie Jacobs-Bond, who came before them this morning at the opening exercises. She appeared becomingly attired in a white street costume and a storm of applause greeted her appearance.

Prof. Buell introduced her to the audience by saying that Janesville was proud to remember the distinguished people that the city had sent out into the world to do the world's work. He mentioned Frances Willard and said the men were proud to remember that Matthew Carpenter had called Janesville his home.

Mrs. Bond, in an interesting talk, in a spirit of comradeship with the young people that she was delighted to see, said:

"I am back home where I was born and just around the corner is the place where I lived. And here next door is the school house where I went to school. I am sorry to say that I was a poor pupil and a very plain little girl. In those days you had to think just is the man in the book said. Nowadays there is room for individuality. Do not copy someone else. Personally I am the greatest asset. When you graduate you have just commenced life. The school or experience is the greatest school. Personally makes the person that anyone can be."

She told a story in which Satan is made to say that discouragement is the very best instrument that he keeps in stock. Her advice was: "Make up your mind what you want to do and keep right at it."

Continuing, she said: "When I started out I knew nothing practical, but I always had an ideal of being a writer. I am a song writer, but only a little song writer for the great people. It has come straight from my heart to them."

Mrs. Bond gave the students several little songs about the worst thing in the world which was "talking about folks." She said: "Remember, a body can hurt you by talking about you, but it hurts the one who says it. She recalled a story that Van Dyke has also told in a different way of a very rich woman who had everything that money could buy in this world but that was all. So when she died and came to the best place of all she said to St. Peter at the gate: 'I have come to redeem the promises made to you.'"

"An angel met her inside and after walking all day they came to a great, lonesome field without a tree in it, and a shabby little hut built upon a hill. The angel said, 'I am sorry, but this is the best we could do with the material of good given us and kindly thoughts sent up by you.'"

Then Mrs. Bond said: "It is twenty-eight or thirty years since I played all over these grounds as a little girl and experimented in physics by climbing on the fences in the neighborhood and walking on the ridge poles. And in this way so many things have happened. It is only by the experience of sorrow that you can write of sorrow, so one of the songs that I will sing with the message of sorrow is a message from the girl of the past to the young people of the present with its story of all that has gone between."

Mrs. Bond then seated herself at the piano, and gave a little program of songs, several of them written by her. The first one had for its thought, "What you can't help, forgive; if you are saying anything about people, think if it is true, and consider if you would like to be said about you. She said she would like to sing to them "Perfect Day," but as she has sung it already over three million times, her enthusiasm had evaporated, and she was afraid she could not do it well, so she would tell them the story of its origin.

It was written at the end of a beautiful day, when with a party of friends, she had visited Mount Rubidoux in southern California. Thousands of people congregated here every year to view the sunrise on Easter morning. Last year over 15,000 people gathered there for that event.

(Although Mrs. Bond was too modest to mention the fact, on one occasion one of her own songs was sung by an assembled chorus) With this party of friends, Mrs. Bond had been to view the sunset, a wonderful scene which takes place in a vista of one hundred and fifty miles of beautiful valleys and mountains. On their return to the Mission Inn, she had set down this little verse that came into her mind and used it as place cards at the dinner given to the guests.

It so well, that she set it to music, and it was so successful that it met the needs of the popular heart. But some time everyone has a perfect day and this song went out to express the perpetuate this thought, when it became almost a folk song. It America can be said to have a folk song.

Mrs. Bond explained the song, "Do you remember the daisies of the sea?" by saying that it was written for some friends who had visited her home in San Diego. This is a beautiful place situated high up on the Mountain Grosmont, overlooking the valley and with Catalina Islands in the distance. The theme of the song:

"Do you remember the daisies of the sea, Do you remember the mists of the sea, Do you remember the mists of the sea, do you still remember?"

Mrs. Bond also sang an unpublished song, "Let's Play a Game of Make-Believe." The thought of the poem all I see: let's make believe the best is coming to me," and also "Make believe this world's all right to cover up our fears."

In response to an insistent applause from the pupils, Mrs. Bond returned to the piano and gave them a child's song, "Got to Practice." In the beginning the little girl says: "Here I am mother, dear, can I do anything for you?" (In sweetest tones.) Then following the verse, "Practice," the reply is, "Oh, dear me," followed by scales and five finger exercises. "A dreadful thing to do, but I am so good to you."

Mr. Buell thanked her for the name of the pupils for the inspiring words that she had given them, and her delightful songs and personality that could not fail to be helpful to the young people.

OBITUARY

Allyn Gibson Lowry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Evan G. Lowry, passed away at eleven o'clock Thursday evening at the home, 213 North Washington street. Death came as the result of an illness of seven months' duration.

During the long months of sickness the boy, thirteen years of age last May, was always cheerful and never complaining and ever grateful for the slightest service. All that he asked for was a good, clean, and loving hand could be given to him, and he was very obedient, with those he loved he was very kind and loving.

Allyn Lowry was born May 12, 1901, in Janesville, and had always lived in this city. He was a bright boy in school and had finished his studies in the eighth grade last spring, fully intending to enter high school this fall. He was a favorite with his playmates and boy companions and enjoyed the esteem and friendship of a large number of "chums" of his age.

Besides the grief stricken father and mother, there survive two brothers, Evan and Roy Lowry, and a sister, Mrs. Lowry. Funeral services will be held Sunday, the hour to be announced later.

Delia Grimes, the late Mrs. Delia Grimes will be taken to Jonesville, Mich., this evening at 7 o'clock for interment.

ASKS CORRECTION AS TO STORY OF THE FIRE

Blodgett Milling Company Officials Resent Inference That Their Property is a Fire Trap.

In the following letter received from the officials of the Blodgett Milling company, reference is made to the report of the fire on Wednesday evening, which for a time threatened to be a serious conflagration, resents the implication that their property is a fire trap. The letter explains itself.

Dear Sir:

Every foot of our milling plant here is protected by an automatic sprinkler system, approved by the fire prevention bureau of both the Stock and Mutual Fire Insurance companies.

This system was installed by us at considerable expense for the express purpose of preventing any serious fire loss. The experience of Wednesday night successfully demonstrated the purpose for which it was installed.

We believe, therefore, that we are fully warranted in taking exception to several statements which appeared in your issue of October 21st.

The building is not a "fire trap," for no building can be so designated that is protected by automatic sprinklers. The fire occurred in a feed bin and was confined to that one bin. No damage was done to the mill, and the principal injury being through and wetting of belting. There was no "mill powder" where the fire occurred or elsewhere on the premises. If you will interpret a phrase coined by your reporter and unknown in milling parlance.

Believing, therefore, that the article referred to is misleading and incorrect, we ask that you publish this communication in your issue of October 21st, in a place as was accorded the article to which we have referred.

Yours truly,

THE BLODGETT MILLING CO.

Per Frank H. President.

Per D. W. Holmes, Secretary and Treasurer.

In honor of Miss Margaret Burns of Cincinnati, Miss Loreta Conant of 216 Lincoln street, entertained last evening at her home at a 7 o'clock dinner. Covers were laid for twelve. Following the repast a theatre party was enjoyed.

Thursday's Market.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Closing hog prices yesterday were $2.25@1.10 lower than Monday's best time, being about the greatest decline on record for three succeeding days.

Base line below the $3 mark for the first time since last June. The Anglo-American drove cost $5.95 and Armour's $7.05. Other big droves cost $4.00@7.40.

Conditions at outside points in the hog trade were even worse than at Chicago. St. Joseph telegraphed a 75¢ decline yesterday, with the market demoralized.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $7.30, against $7.55 Wednesday, $8.35 Tuesday, $8.55 Monday, $8.52 a week ago and $7.34 a year ago.

Big Lay-over of Hogs.

With no shipping demand and the largest "lay over" of hogs since February of last year, packers had everything their own way in the trade yesterday. Conditions were decidedly panic-stricken. Very little business was transacted before 10 o'clock, and average price dropped 55¢, with top 50¢ lower than Wednesday at $7.90. Wednesday's receipts were 37,125 and the lay-over today 13,252. Quality fair. Quotations:

WEATHER FORECAST.

DOUR AND QUARRELSOME.

Europe today presents strange contrasts in the attitude of the leaders of the great Continental struggle that are difficult to understand. One would expect Russia to become overbalanced by Ceteras with such an internal bickering between the nobility and the entire nation a seething fire of insurrection. It would not be surprising if the Germans decided that the war was costing them entirely too much and refused to contribute further. Austria, with its empire of Hungary and Austria and the Bohemians and many other peoples, might become disrupted. Italy, one would be certain to pick as quarrelsome, while France has always been noted for its volatile temperament. But when we are told that England is dour and quarrelsome, that its cabinet members are at odds with each other, that its press is full of criticism, that its commander in chief, Lord Curzon, is a man of a different order, that the New York Globe sums the situation up when it says that France and Great Britain seem to have changed traditional roles and character. Unstable France was steady even when the Prussians were at the gates of Paris. Dour Great Britain, unless misrepresented by the London newspapers, is jumpy and nervous, and powerful enemies are seemingly determined to have serious difficulty.

"France trusts 'Papa' Joffre and Premier Viviani. France is aware that mistakes have been made—that many things have been done that should not have been done, and things left undone that should have been done. But it is realized by the democracy of France that the blundering is inevitable. It is realized that matters will not be helped by terrorizing the national leaders—making them so fearful of committing mistakes that they will play safe and do nothing.

"A large section of the British press is devoting itself to destroying reputations. Winston Churchill was a competent man when he put the British navy in a state of marvelous efficiency, but he became a wrecked misfit when he sent ships against the Dardanelles defenses. Kitchener was an organizing genius until he could not perform the miracle of creating a huge army in a few weeks. Sir Edward Grey was a skillful foreign minister until a German king of Bulgaria took the side a German is likely to take, and the Kaiser's brother-in-law at Athens yielded to the pleadings of his wife. Now it is Asquith who is the center of attack, and it is proposed to drive him out of office.

"Northcliffe, who seems to have all the vices and none of the virtues of America's most influential yellow journalist, is apparently committed to doing all he can to discourage the British people and to dry up the stream of voluntary enlistments. His latest charge is that the young Englishmen are emigrating to avoid enlistment—a charge certainly not supported by the immigration figures of Ellis Island. Northcliffe is determined to have conscription—and to get it. He feels it necessary to throttle the voluntary system, which up to the present has furnished all the men Kitchener has been able to equip.

"Much is of course, to be allowed for the excessive expression in a democratic country that does not surrender its freedom even in war time. During our civil war Lincoln's task was added to by a copperhead fire from the rear. But the explanation of democratic freedom does not fully explain. It would seem there is some basis for the Germany theory that Great Britain is decadent—lacking the spirit that enabled her to wage war calmly against Napoleon for twenty years. The disaster stimulating her to greater effort. It is certainly a most disturbing thing to all intelligent Englishmen of the old tradition to perceive that the leading journalist of the empire, in command of the batteries of the historic 'Thunderer,' is such a man as Northcliffe.

ALONG THE BORDER.

One of the most striking instances of the lack of preparedness in national defense is to be found along the Mexican border these days. Here is the cream of our standing army unable to cope with a handful of Mexican desperadoes who cross the Rio Grande at their will, shoot down a few soldiers, loot a store or two, murder innocent ranchers and run off their stock and then vanish across the border into Mexico. Our waiting, watchful government down at Washington is talking a lot about preparedness, but right here before their eyes are shining examples of lack of it, lack of jurisdiction to punish these invaders, that makes all their talk look cheap and clap trap. Even if he was able to defend himself from attack, the average American soldier would hesitate to do so fearing a reprimand from a government that wasted millions in attacking Vera Cruz and like the King of France marched his army up a hill and then marched it down again. This lack of preparedness could be remedied a great deal if there were some men with backbone in the Wilson cabinet at Washington.

MITIGATING CIRCUMSTANCES.

It always appears that when a criminal has been caught in the very act of committing a crime, if they have money or influence, or powerful friends, there is always a question of doubt as to their guilt raised and mitigating circumstances appear that either tend to lessen the charge against them or bring about their release. On the other hand, if the criminals have no friends, no influence, money, they are given short shift and the provisions of the law which fit their cases are quickly invoked and they are suitably punished. It is strange what mitigating circumstances coupled with the glib tongue of a clever attorney can do in what is apparently an open and shut case of law-breaking. Did you ever stop to consider this? If not, watch the next case, either of local or national importance, and note the final outcome. The meaning of the law can be twisted more ways than the average Jay-man realizes until it is invoked. This is a great world we live in when you come right down to it.

If we are to go by signs the coming winter season will be a cold one and with deep snows. Dame nature has provided plenty of nuts for its little animals and also a liberal carpeting of leaves from the grasses, so they will not be too cold. However, scientists say there is nothing to these theories, just the same as historians tell us George Washington never cut down the cherry tree.

These are hard days for the book agent who seeks to dispose of histories of Europe. With the map changing almost every day, the outcome hard to guess, a book written today will be valueless a year from today. Best confine the historical reference to the middle ages. They can not be changed now even by a Krupp gun or a Zep.

Leaves are the bane of existence of the average property owner these days. Just when he has his own lawn nicely raked up the surplus from his neighbor's blows his way or his own pet piles are wafted into the four parts of the yard by some gentle breeze.

Just what Mayor Thompson will do if the six thousand saloons in Chicago all decide to remain open in defiance of the state law on Sunday next is hard to say. It is going to be a bitter fight between the liquor and anti-liquor people to say the least. Meanwhile the wise citizen with a thirst is patronizing the home ice box on these dry Sundays.

Just as though the Wisconsin legislature had not been in session long enough? Here comes one member who wants the governor to call into extra session to settle some disputed question that they could not find time to solve during their months of bickering.

Whitehaven Glocks was a truthful man. In his whole life he had never told a lie. As we make his acquaintance he is inspecting Bollweevil.

"Twimmins' newest baby." "Glocks," said Twimmins anxiously, "does he really look like me? As man to man, tell me."

Whitehaven Glocks looked down at the little lobster colored, wrinkled, putty, monkey faced edition of Bollweevil Twimmins and stammered.

"Well, hem—haw—well—" persisted Twimmins doggedly. "As man to man, does he?"

Glocks looked again. Would he at last be forced to tell a lie in order to avoid wounding beyond repair his friend's feelings?

"The truth, now—mind!" warned Twimmins.

So Glocks closed his eyes and blurted out the truth.

"Yes," he does," he said. "I thought so! I thought so!" cried Twimmins in an ecstasy of joy, and threw his arms around Bollweevil Glocks' neck and insisted on his going around to the drug store and taking a cucumber ice cream soda at the very least.

Prominent Sunday School Worker in Girl's Department Will Give Three Addresses Here.

Mrs. P. P. Stair of Kenosha, Wisconsin, who is superintendent of the girls' department of the Wisconsin Sunday School association, will be in this city Sunday enroute to her home from Madison. Pastors of churches of this city plan for her to visit many of the Sunday schools. She will give three addresses; the first in the morning at the Methodist church and in the afternoon, and at a general meeting to be held in the evening at the Warrant issued at Beloit for Arrest of Three Alleged Shoplifters Who Plead Tomorrow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 22.—A warrant has been issued here for the arrest of Grace Green, Esther Halcor and Louise Nelson on the complaint filed by the Beloit municipality charging grand larceny from the Bailey & Son store amounting to seventy dollars.

The three Rockford women are expected to appear before Judge George Grimm in the circuit court for Rock county Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, and reports at Beloit show that some county officer will be on hand at the time of their arraignment with the warrant for their arrest on the Beloit charge.

It is claimed by Beloit authorities that at least three other merchants here were made victims of the nimble stealing fingers of the three, but the amount alleged to have been stolen from the Bailey & Son store is the largest.

"I really want to know," persisted Twimmins doggedly. "As man to man, does he?"

Glocks looked again. Would he at last be forced to tell a lie in order to avoid wounding beyond repair his friend's feelings?

"The truth, now—mind!" warned Twimmins.

So Glocks closed his eyes and blurted out the truth.

"Yes," he does," he said. "I thought so! I thought so!" cried Twimmins in an ecstasy of joy, and threw his arms around Bollweevil Glocks' neck and insisted on his going around to the drug store and taking a cucumber ice cream soda at the very least.

NEW SOCIAL LIFE FOR H. S. STUDENTS

Faculty of High School Adopt New System of Regulation for All School Socials.

The faculty of the Janesville high school have been making a special effort this year to give more social life to the students under the proper conditions. In order to carry out this plan a faculty social committee was appointed with this in view. In the past the parents of the students have objected to having their children attend the high school functions as it keeps them out so late at night.

To meet these objections it is planned to hold all school parties at which freshmen and sophomores, pupils are in attendance, in the afternoon. This is a move that all leading high schools are doing in almost every city. Parties given by juniors and seniors may be held at night as usual but must close promptly at ten o'clock.

The ruling adopted now provides that each class may hold one class party during the year, and the seniors may entertain the freshmen and the juniors and sophomores may hold a joint party, making six school parties during the year. These rules will be carried out after the senior-freshman reception this fall, which will be held in the evening, but in the future the function will be in the afternoon.

The Young People's society of the Norwegian Lutheran church had a very sociable time at their meeting last evening, being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Nels Anderson. The program consisted of an amusing reading by Miss Inez Keesey, and an interesting talk by Rev. Thorson. Delicious refreshments were served, after which games were played, which were heartily enjoyed by all. Mrs. C. C. Tuttle and Mrs. C. E. Bailey spent the day in Rockford.

HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES is a common yet very serious disorder. It is considered the beginning of the end.

A noted California physician who during past 7 years, treated forty-eight cases of this disease with the MILK DIET TREATMENT, said: "Nearly every case can be cured." He cited case of an old gentleman whose pulse felt like a wire, but which became soft during the treatment seven years ago.

"The neuralgia of the heart from which he suffered intensely, disappeared. Neither the hardening of the arteries or the heart trouble has ever returned."

MANY STYLE SHOWS
HELD IN NEW YORKMiss New York Is Being Treated to Many and Diverse Fashion Exhibitions This Week.

By Margaret Mason.

Oh look who's here! They're mad, mad, mad! To show you what is smart; If you'd be swell Just eye them well And follow what they start.

New York, Oct. 22.—Miss New York certainly ought to know how to dress and where and when with all the divers and divers she has seen for her benefit these last two weeks.

Mrs. Belle Armstrong-Whitney, who has been the fashion show for the benefit of the Astor's fund at Carnegie Hall, has been the fashion show for the benefit of the Astor's fund at Carnegie Hall.

Miss New York is being treated to many and diverse fashion exhibitions this week. She has seen the latest in fashion from the most famous designers in the world.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it proper for a boy to send a girl stamps when he writes to her?

(2) I have been going with a boy for over a year and now my parents are trying to break up our friendship. They seem to think I am too old for him.

(3) I am a girl of eighteen and have been in the habit of going with young men. This summer I went with one nice fellow who lives very near to me. He said he didn't have a steady girl, but he went with one girl quite awhile before he went with me. We got along fine together and he acted as though he cared for me, but now he has gone back to that same girl. People have told him not to go with her, but he doesn't seem to care. When he went with me he said he wouldn't notice her any more. I like the fellow very much and I don't care for anyone else. I would like to go with him again. I don't know what to do. I care, but I don't care. How could I gain his friendship again?

There is a chance that the boy went with her for a while to pique the other girl. If he did he wasn't very honorable. Forget him. There is nothing you can do to get him back.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me of some way to remove tan from my neck without injury to the skin?

Put half a pint of rich milk into a porcelain kettle and bring it to a boil. Skim carefully, and add one-half ounce of strained lemon juice. Remove from the heat and pour in one-half ounce of white brandy. Bottle when cold, and apply to the neck or face at night with a soft cloth, letting the mixture stay on all night. Wipe over the tanned skin again in the morning.

SIR ANDREW NOBEL DIES: AUTHORITY ON EXPLOSIVES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 22.—The death is announced of Sir Andrew Nobel.

Sir Andrew Nobel was an authority on artillery and explosives. For many years Andrew, who was born in Scotland in 1831, served on experimental and administrative committees in connection with the work of the Woolwich arsenal. He was author of several works on these subjects.

Advantages about the place and didn't say so much about the advantages. Let her find them out when she came. I suppose that was the same theory.

They all told about their homes. "It's like a woman I met at a summer hotel once," said the author's wife. "There were quite a crowd there who came from different suburbs of the city and we formed a little bridge club and planned to meet at each other's homes in the winter. All the women had been trying to make out that they lived in great style at home, managed to refer to the servants they kept, etc., etc., but there was one woman who never had a thing to say about her home."

"And here turned out to be the love of all," guessed Molly. "You might let me tell it," complained the author's wife, thus robbed of her climax. "Yes, it was all that taste and money both could make it, and of course it seemed all the more impressive because we had expected so little."

"What does it make you think of, Big Sister?" asked Molly of the Lady who always knows something.

"I was thinking of something in the Bible," "Godness! Is there something about 'there'?" Dr. they put their worst foot forward."

"They were inclined to put their best, but it was suggested to them that the other way was more honorable."

"Where is it?" "Well, just for the interest of it, see if you can find it yourself," said the Lady.

"How about it, reader friend?"

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

Notice the double boning the boy is flipping. Over and over again it springs back into shape, but never breaks.

That is just the way it does in the corset. It is so wonderfully flexible and durable because each bone is composed of two lightweight strips. Made up in this way it has twice the flexibility and much greater strength than a single heavy bone.

There is no stiffness or uncomfortable rigidity about a Warner's.

On account of the double boning it gives to every motion without setting or breaking.

This makes a Warner's corset as remarkable in its way for comfort as it is for style, for every occasion and every purpose.

Then a Warner's launders so well—it can be sent to the wash as unconcerned as you would send your lingerie. It will return in perfect condition, water does not hurt it in the least, and it will neither rust, break or tear.

COMFORT, Service and Style—you will find all three in Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets. Wear one and be convinced.

Every Warner, even at the lowest price, must give satisfaction.

Every Pair Guaranteed $1 up.

HEALTH TALKS

Shortness of Breath.

A number of correspondents have requested us to suggest something good for shortness of breath. This general fact and let the astute reader draw his own conclusions. Let us cite actual cases from practice, in which the chief complaint was shortness of breath.

(1) A carpenter, forty-four years old. Shortness of breath on exertion. Poor sleep. Slight cough. Examination disclosed an old valvular defect, probably due to an acute mitral valvularitis (inflammatory rheumatism) he had thirteen years ago.

(2) Clerk in hardware store, twenty-five. Shortness of breath on walking to and from store. Occasional clearing of throat. General health a bit poor. Slightly hoarse at times. Examination (about a dozen of them) finally demonstrated incipient pulmonary tuberculosis.

(3) Insurance agent, thirty-four. For six months had noticed increasing shortness of breath. Had lost fifteen pounds weight. Occasional severe spells of coughing, no expectoration. At beginning had felt much pain in right side under shoulder blade (which his doctor called "liver trouble" and the formation of examination). Recently could not sleep on left side. Examination disclosed, and the needle withdrew, a large quantity of fluid from the right pleural cavity.

(4) Attorney, hard worker. Hard sleeper. Moderate drinker. Aged thirty-eight. Had his last fast. For about a year noticed his "wind" was not easily settled, and when hurrying for a car, there was a refreshing. Had much dull headache. Looked rather pallid. Blood pressure 120 mm. Radial and temporal arteries could be felt when roiled under the fingers. Arterio-sclerosis beginning.

(5) Woman thirty-five, mother of two children. Out of breath when walking or working about house. Sleepy and drowsy most of time. Gained ten or fifteen pounds weight in six months. Now forty pounds overweight. Pulse slow. Temperature too low. Sensitive to cold. Never perspired. General functions seemed to be in a state of depression and melancholy, without reason. Diagnosis: Hypo-thyroidism—confirmed by restoration promptly under duress gland feeding.

(6) Girl, nineteen, employed at machine in knitting mill. Out of breath all the time—couldn't seem to get enough air in her lungs. Tired much. Frequent headaches. Perspiration often, and sometimes sharp pain over heart. On to dances and shows four or five nights a week. Never enough sleep. Normal weight. Flushed cheeks. Mucous membranes looked pale. Blood examination. Hemoglobin is 50 per cent.; red cells, 4,000,000; chest examination negative. Simple anemia—due to confinement and too much tango.

(7) A man, half dozen random cases illustrate that by symptoms and the shortness of breath is not very significant. In order to relieve it we must determine what causes it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Antitoxin Doses.

Is not 40,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin too much to give a child of four years in two days?

Answer: No. It is often essential to give more than that in one day. In one dose.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO AMERICAN WOMEN

Mme. Assad Ullah.

New York, Oct. 21.—When Mme. Assad Ullah, a Persian noblewoman, pleaded for the life of her brother, she started Persian women into the revolt for freedom. And now that woman, on a protracted visit to America, pays the American women the highest tribute that can come from one nation to those of another.

"I have come to you in America," she said, "to breathe your spirit of freedom, so that it may become part of me. I am a Persian woman, but I am an American woman."

Mme. Ullah is the wife of Mirza Assad Ullah, the famous peace advocate and prophet of the Oriental religion Baha, which is slowly spreading through the Occidental world. He has come to this country to found colleges for the teaching of this religion, which is claimed to be a combination of the good parts of all religions.

Mme. Ullah allowed her son, educated in America, to marry an American woman, and she was the first Persian woman who allowed her daughter to marry a foreigner. Her daughter is the wife of Professor Sydney Sprague, an American. Both of these were drastic steps in caste-bound Persia, but it is for that reason that she favored these marriages and dared to encourage the growth of the religion.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; and enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

HOW TO HEAL SKIN-DISEASES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable drugstore get a jar of resolin ointment and a cake of resolin soap. These will not cost a bit more than seventy-five cents. With the resolin soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resolin ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

A HINT FOR SHAVERS

If you want a refreshing shave, with a thick, creamy lather, try a resolin shaving stick. It contains the soothing, healing resolin medication which makes it especially welcome to men with tender faces.

What to Do to Get Fat and Increase Weight

The Real Cause of Thinness.

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all a matter of the nature of the food.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain in a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Advertisement.

The Battle-Cry

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK
Author of
"The Call of the Cumberland"

(Copyright by Charles Neville Buck.)

Jim had a bland tongue and a persuasive manner, and he talked to the mountain men in his own speech, but he was none the less the advance agent of the new enemy from down below: the personal fulfillment of Juanita's prophecy to Roger Malcolm.

Juanita did not realize how much she was leaning on the strength of Anse Havey, how she depended on him for counsel and encouragement, which he gave not in behalf of the school, but because he was the school teacher's slave. She saw the little hospital rise on the hill and thought of what it would do, and she believed that Anse Havey must be, in his heart, converted, even though his mountain obstinacy would not let him say so.

Then while the hillsides were joyous with spring, came a squad of lads with transit and chain, who began running a tentative line through the land that Jim Fletcher had bought. Anse Havey watched them grimly with folded arms, but said no word until they reached the boundary of his own place.

There he met them at the border. "Boys," he said, "ye mustn't cross that fence. This is my land, an' I forbids ye."

Their foreman argued. "We only want to take the measurements necessary to complete our line, Mr. Havey. We won't work any injury."

Anse shook his head. "Come in, boys, an' eat with me an' make yourselves at home," he told them, "but leave your tools outside."

Men from the house patrolled the boundary with rifles and the young men were forced to turn back.

But later they drew near the house of old Bob McGregor, and he, stealing down to the place in the thicket of rhododendron, saw them perilously near the trickling stream which even then bore on its surface little kernels of yellow corn. Deeply and violently old Bob swore as he drank from his little blue keg, and when one day he saw them again he asked counsel of no man. He went down and crept close through the laurel, and when his old rifle spoke a schoolboy from the Blue Grass fell dead among the rocks of the water course.

After that death, the first murder of an innocent outsider, the war which Anse Havey had so long foreseen broke furiously and brought the orders of upland and lowland to the grip of bitter animosity.

Old McGregor's victim had been young Roy Calvin, the son of Judge Calvin of Lexington, and the name of Calvin in central Kentucky was one associated with the state's best traditions.

It had run in a strong, bright thread through the pattern of Kentucky's achievements, and when news of the wanton assassination came home, the state awoke to a shock of horror. The infamy of the hills was screamed in echo to the mourning, and the name of Bad Anse Havey was once more printed in large type.

The men whose capital sought to wrest profit from the hills, and whose employee had been slain, were quick to take advantage of this hue and cry of calamity.

They hurried themselves into the fight for gaining possession of coveted land and were not particular as to methods.

Jim Fletcher came and went constantly between the lowlands and highlands. He was all things to all men, and in the hills he cursed the lowlander, but in the lowland he cursed the hills. Milt and Jeb and Anse rode constantly from cabin to cabin in their efforts to circumvent the adroit schemes of the mountain Judas who had sold his soul to the lowland syndicate.

Fletcher sought a foothold for capital to pierce fields acquired at the price of undeveloped land and then to take the profit of development. Anse sought to hold title until the sales could be on a fairer basis, and so the issue was made up.

Capitalists, like Malcolm, who sat in directors' rooms launching a legitimate enterprise, had no actual knowledge of the instrumentalities being employed on the real battlefield. Lawyers tried condemnation suits with indifferent success, and then reached out their hands for a new weapon.

Back in the old days, when Kentucky was not a state but a county, land patents had been granted by Virginia to men who had never claimed their property. For two hundred years other men who settled as pioneers had held undisturbed possession, they and their children's children. Now into the courts piled multitudinous suits of eviction in the names of plaintiffs whose eyes had never seen the broken skyline of the Cumberland. Their purpose was deceit, since it sought to drag through long and costly litigation pauper landholders and to impose such a galling burden upon their property as should drive them to terms of surrender.

Men and women who owned, or thought they owned, a log shack and a tilting cornfield found themselves facing a new and bewildering crisis.

When His Old Rifle Spoke a Schoolboy From the Blue Grass Fell Dead.

Their untaught minds brooded and they talked violently of holding by title of rifle what their fathers had wrested from nature, what they had tended with sweat and endless toil.

But Anse Havey and Milt McBriar knew that the day was at hand when the rifle would no longer serve. They employed lawyers fitted to meet those lawyers and give them battle in the courts, and these lawyers were paid by Anse Havey and Milt McBriar.

The two stood stanchly together as a buffer between their almost helpless people and the encroaching tentacles of the new octopus, while Juanita, looking on at the forming of the battalions, was torn with anxiety.

In Bad Anse Havey the combination of interests recognized its really most formidable foe. In the mountain phrase, he must be "man-powered outen ther way." And there were still men in the hills who, if other means failed, would sell the service of their "rifle-guns" for money.

With such as these it became the care of certain supernumeraries to establish an understanding. In the last election a thing had happened which had not for many years before happened in Kentucky—a change of parties had swept from power in Frankfort the administration which owed loyalty to Havey influences.

Bad Anse Havey was indicted as an accessory to the murder of young Calvin and he would be tried, not in Peril, but in the Blue Grass. The prosecution would be able to show that he had warned the surveyors of his own place and had pocketed his fence line with riflemen. They would be able to show that he was the forefront of the fight against innovation and that lesser mountain men followed his counsel blindly and regarded his word as law. But, more than that, the jurors who passed on his question of life and death would be drawn from a community which knew him only by his newspaper-made reputation.

So it was not long before Anse Havey lay in a cell in the Winchester jail. He had been denied bond and fronted a dreary prospect.

When the trial of Anse Havey began there was one spirit in the land. Here was an exponent of the unjustifiable system of murder from ambush. In the cemetery at Lexington, where sleep the founders of the western empire, lay a boy whose life had just begun in all the blossom and sunshine of promise and who had done no wrong.

The special term of the court had brought to Winchester a throng of farmer folk and onlookers. Their horses stood hitched at the racks about the square when the sheriff led Anse Havey from the jail to the old building where he was to face his accusers and the judges who sat on the bench and in the jury box.

He took his seat with his counsel at his elbow and listened to the preliminary formalities of impaneling a jury. His face told nothing, but as man after man was excused because he had formed an opinion, he read little that was hopeful in the outlook.

He calmly heard perjured witnesses from his own country testify that he had approached them, offering bribes for the killing of young Calvin which they had righteously refused. He knew that these men had been bought by Jim Fletcher and that they swore for the hire of syndicate money, but he only waited patiently for the defense to open.

He saw the scowl on the faces in the jury box deepen into conviction as witness after witness took the stand against him, and he saw the faces in the body of the room mirror that scowl.

Then the prosecution rested, and as a few of his perjuries were punctured, the faces in the box lightened their scowl a little—but very little. The tide had set against him, and he knew it. Unless one of those strangely psychological things should occur which sweep jurors suddenly from their moorings of fixed opinion, he must be the sacrifice to Blue Grass wrath, and on the list of witnesses under the hand of his attorney there were only a few names left—pitifully few.

Then Anse Havey saw his chief counsel set his jaw, as he had a trick of setting it when he faced a forlorn hope, and throw the list of names aside as something worthless. As the lawyer spoke Anse Havey's face for the first time lost its immobility and showed amazement. He bent forward, wondering if his ears had not tricked him. His attorneys had not consulted him as to this step.

"Mr. Sheriff," commanded the lawyer for the defense, "call Miss Juanita Holland to the stand."

CHAPTER XXIII.

If in the mountains there was one person of whom the Blue Grass knew with favor, it was Juanita Holland. She had worked quietly and without any blare of trumpets. Her efforts had never been advertised, but the thing she was trying to do was too unusual a thing to have escaped public notice and public laudation. That she was spending her life and her own large fortune in a manner of self-sacrifice and hardship was a thing of which the state had been duly apprised.

She, at least, would stand acquitted of feuding passion. She stood as a lone fighter for the spirit of all that was best and most unselfish in Kentucky ideals and the ideals of civilization.

If she chose to come now as a witness for Anse Havey, she should have a respectful hearing. The prisoner bent forward and fixed eyes blazing with excitement on the door of the witness room. He saw it open and saw her pause there, pale and rather perplexed, then she came steadily to the witness stand and asked: "Do I sit here?"

The man had known her always in the calico and gingham of the mountains. This seemed a different woman who took her seat and raised her hand to be sworn. She was infinitely more beautiful he thought, in the habiliments of her own world. She seemed a queen who had waived her regal prerogatives and come into this mean courtroom in his behalf.

His heart leaped into tumult. He would not have asked her to come:

would not have permitted her to submit to the heckling of the prosecutor, whose face was already drawing into a vindictive frown, had he known. She had come, however, anyway—perhaps, after all, she cared! If so, it was a revelation worth hanging for.

Then he heard her voice low and musically pitched in answer to questions.

"I have known Mr. Havey," she said quietly, "ever since I went to the mountains. He has helped me in my work and has been an advocate of peace wherever peace could be had with honor."

At the end of each answer the commonwealth's attorney was on his feet with quickly snapped objections. Anse Havey's heart sank. He knew this man's reputation for bullying witnesses, and he had never seen a woman who had come through the ordeal unshaken. Yet slowly the anxiety on his face gave way to a smile of infinite admiration. Juanita Holland's quiet dignity made the testy wrath of the state's lawyer seem futile and peevish.

The defendant saw the subtle change of expression on the faces of the jury. He saw them shifting their sympathy from the lawyer to the woman, and the lawyer saw it, too. They kept her there, grilling her with all the tactics known to artful barristers for an unconscionable length of time, but she was still serene and unconfused.

"By heaven!" exclaimed Anse Havey to himself, as he leaned forward, "she's makin' fools of 'em all—an' she's doin' it for me!"

Even the judge, whose face had been sternly set against the defense, shifted in his chair and his expression softened. The commonwealth's attorney rose and walked forward, and Anse Havey clenched his hands under the table, while his fingers itched to seize the tormentor's throat.

Dinner Stories

He was certainly a very poor specimen of humanity, and, so far as could be seen, was certainly a fitting recipient of the pennies dropped into his box by the charitable-minded. Day after day he sat there, none knowing or caring how he managed the journey to and from his residence, in whatever part of the town that might be, without an accident. "What brought you to this, my poor fellow?" inquired a lady of a rather more practical turn of mind than many. "My children, ma'am," replied the fellow.

with a pitiful groan. Dropping a quarter into the box, the lady passed on, with a remark to her companion as to what some children are responsible for. A bystander who overheard the remark, asked him the ages of his children. "The eldest is twelve, and there are four others," replied the knave. "Then, you rascal, how could they bring you to this?" "In a handcart, the same as they take me away," was the self-satisfied response.

Jimmie's mother had promised to give him 5 cents every day provided he would keep out of mischief. The other day, when the boy came home from school, she opened her purse and asked: "Have you been a good boy today, Jimmie?" The youngster hesitated a moment and then said: "I'll tell you what, mother. You give me 2 cents and ask no questions."

"I don't know what I want to eat," remarked the guest at the headdress after carefully studying the bill of fare. "Why don't you try some hash," suggested the waiter; "then you won't know what you're getting."

City Gas In The Country COOK AND LIGHT WITH GAS

BLAUGAS is not Acetylene Gas, Gasoline Gas, nor allied with them.

Safest Gas Known—Absolutely non-asphyxiating and non-poisonous. Has an explosive of only 4 per cent compared to city gas with 13 per cent and acetylene gas with 47 per cent making it practically non-explosive.

A Dry Gas—No moisture. Will not freeze or condense in the pipes. Needs no protection in the winter.

Costs Less Per Candle Power—than any other system of lighting. The cost compared to electricity is less than 5c per kilowatt; compared to acetylene about one-half.

Over Three Times Hotter Than City Gas—making it ideal for cooking. Has a minimum of 1800 B. T. U. per cubic foot. Combustion is perfect—no dirt or soot to cling to cooking utensils. The only isolated system that furnishes gas cheaply enough to be used for cooking.

THE BLAUGAS APPARATUS IS ABSOLUTELY WEATHERPROOF (IS INSTALLED OUTDOORS) REQUIRING NO ATTENTION BEYOND THE CHANGING OF BOTTLES—NO GENERATING, NO DIRT, NO HEATING, NO WATER CONNECTIONS, NO LIFTING OF WEIGHTS, NEEDS NO PROTECTION FROM THE WEATHER. NOTHING TO RUST OUT OR CLOG UP. THE SIMPLEST ISOLATED SYSTEM EVER DEvised—JUST CONNECT AND USE.

Money-Making Ways of Using Want Ads

No. 8—Improving Your Working-Force Efficiency Through Want Ads

Mr. Employer, your whole problem of efficiency in your office, store or factory lies in getting the right help.

If you could secure your entire force with the same standard of merit that two or three of your best employees have, you would make more money.

You have perhaps run a Want Ad now and then—have filled up your number, and have stopped using the Want Ad. Why not keep your Want Ads running continuously?

Out of the many who apply, you will certainly secure a few who are good.

Let some of your inefficient help go—and keep up this process until you have the highest possible working standard.

An idea of a running Want Ad will be found in the following:

CHANGE YOUR WANT AD FREQUENTLY. WANTED—YOUNG MEN BETWEEN 18 and 30 years of age, to work in office. Former experience not necessary, but applicants must be bright.

Whatever you sell, or make, is good or bad in accordance with the worth of your workmen and other help. Out of every fifty persons employed, as the "average" of efficiency runs, about ten are either in the rest room or lagging in their work all the time; another ten are only a third or half efficient; another ten are likely just "passable." No matter what kind of help you want, follow this idea. Do not keep the same Want Ad running. Word it differently, and embody the ideas that prove best. Set aside a certain hour to interview applicants, and turn this work over to your most competent man. Used in this way,

Learning to Pray

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE
Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—Lord, teach us to pray.—Luke 11:1.

The disciples chanced one day to overhear the master's private devotions. So impressive was the scene, that when he ceased, they came to him, saying, "Lord, teach us to pray." Without a moment's hesitation, he gave them, first, what we might call "The Model Prayer," secondly, a striking illustration of the value of intercessory prayer, and thirdly, some teaching concerning the chief object of prayer, which is the holy spirit. Indeed, this eleventh chapter of Luke is the most comprehensive teaching on the subject of prayer that the Bible contains.

And where is the great teacher now? Seated at the right hand of God, where "He ever liveth to make intercession for us." And could our spirit-ears be opened, could we hear him as he pleads for us and for the lost world, I am sure our hearts would grow tender, and our eyes moist, and with trembling lips we too should say, "Lord, teach us how to pray."

We remember how Abraham prayed Lot out of Sodom, and Nehemiah prayed himself into the good graces of the king, and Elijah shut up the heavens for three years, and the friends of Peter prayed him out of prison; and all these were men of like passions with ourselves. Lord, teach us to pray. Yes, to "pray." We can recall many utterances which passed for prayer, but which we fear the master would not recognize as such—selfish prayers, thoughtless prayers, which had no aim or purpose, prayers from which we did not expect an answer, did not look for an answer, and would have been mightily surprised if an answer had come.

And all of these have gone up to the mercy-seat with our names upon them, and there they lie in the archives of heaven unanswered, because unanswered. Oh, friends, it is one thing to make a prayer, it is quite another thing to pray. Lord, teach us how to pray. How suggestive that phrase is, "Make a prayer!" As if a prayer could be made to order, whether there was any occasion for it or not! But to pray, to really talk with God, and bring things to pass, that is a privilege which angels might covet, and an art which is worthy of a lifetime of study.

The Chinese write their prayers on bits of paper and throw them into the air, hoping that they may be blown up to heaven. The Hindus have praying machines, and express their devotion by turning a crank. The followers of Mohammed five times a day fall upon their knees wherever they are at the hour of prayer, and call upon God.

How much we need to be taught! How often we ask for things which are better for us not to have, while the things we need most are seldom mentioned. Paul was right when he said, "We know not what to pray for as we ought." How little we realize the willingness of God to answer prayer! Too often he is addressed as a capricious tyrant from whom blessing can be obtained only by persistent teasing. Instead of a loving father who lives and labors for his children's welfare. How little we perceive the scope of the promises! We see the surface meanings, perhaps, but the depths—Oh, the depths! How little we understand the deep things of God!

How little we understand the relation of prayer to Christian work. The common idea is that work is the main business of a Christian, and a little prayer is necessary to help the work along. Work is the strong bow which supplies the force to speed the arrow on its way, while prayer is the feather which tips the arrow, and helps guide it to its destined mark. Christ's idea is entirely different. In his conception prayer is the chief business of a Christian, with just enough work to make a channel through which the spiritual forces generated by prayer may find an outlet. Prayer is the bow which supplies the force, and work is the feather which guides the arrow towards its destination. "If ye shall ask—I will do," he says. In other words, Christ is still doing the work which he "began to do" (Acts 1:1), and he invites us to help him by prayer.

Yes, we are ignorant, but thank God we can all learn. Jesus has opened a school of prayer in which, if we will, we may learn the divine art. And what a teacher! How patient, how longsuffering with dull scholars! And how much he knows about the subject! For eighteen hundred years this has been his constant occupation, and now he invites us to become his pupils, and offers to teach us all he knows. "All things that I have heard from my father, I have made known unto you." (John 15:15.)

Enough on Hand.

"Mamma," said four-year-old Margie, who had been assigned the task of rocking the cradle containing her baby brother, "if the angels have any more kids to give away, don't you take 'em."

ELISHA'S HEAVENLY DEFENDERS (THE STORY.)

Next to an actual defeat for a commanding officer is the humiliation of having his strategic movements anticipated by his enemy. Here is an old Bible story of how a certain king of Syria was thus put to confusion. He said in the secrecy of his council of war, "I will make an ambush for the unwary Israelites at such and such a point." But his intended victims evaded his well-made trap. Again he said, "I will make a predatory incursion upon the enemy's territory at such and such a point." But, behold, to his confusion he found the Israelites entrenched at that very point at the very hour, in overwhelming numbers and in battle array.

The quaint narrative says this occurred not once nor twice, it happened continually and persistently. So much so that the king knew it could not be that those who speak of only account for it by treason among his staff officers. So he cried in a rage, "Who of us is for the king of Israel?" Some one in Benhadad's council of war knew how the enemy was informed of the Syrian movements, for he said, "There is no traitor among us, O king, but Elisha, the prophet, that is in Israel, telleth the king of Israel the things that thou speakest in thy bed-chamber." Benhadad showed the characteristic obtuseness of a heathen when he undertook to cope with the infinite power and wisdom of God.

And the Omnipotence which had kept Elisha informed of the king's secrets could not acquaint him with the danger of his own person! As if Omnipotence could not rescue him! At last the break of day the prophet and his servant came to the hill on which they looked down at Dothan, nestling there on the bench of the hill, an emblem of peace and security. The keen eye of the young man pierced beyond the city wall and through the gray of the morning. His eye dilated with wonder. His cheek blanched with fear. "What has he seen?" The city invested, the Syrian cohorts gleaming with purple and gold and the sheen of their spears! There stand the chariots of brass, with the pitiless sickle-blades in their wheels. It would be a fearful hour that would cast its self against the impregnable living fortress. A cry escapes the young man's lips. "Alas! my master! How shall we do?" The prophet does not upbraid his timorous servant, on the contrary, he has a kindly sympathy for him. He is solicitous that he shall be confirmed and established.

The prophet himself is fearless. His faith is as immovable as the mountain on which he stands. But this triumphant courage was not born of an instant—it is an evolution of years. He has witnessed the faithfulness of God in the eucoracies of the six and three years in which he has held the prophetic office. How confidently can he say to his trembling servant at his side, "Fear not for they that be with us are more than they that be with them." Next the prophet commands his servant to God. He asks for him that which he does not need for himself, a visible manifestation of Divine power to effect the hasty array of the enemy. "Lord, I pray Thee open his eyes that he may see."

The prophet's prayer is quickly and graciously answered. The protective forces of grace and providence for the time take visible and martial form. The rescuers are of the same military order as the foe, horsemen with chariots. It is a brilliant and inspiring panorama. Pictures of flaming chariots with angel charioteers move before the wondering eyes of the prophet's servant, seraphic guards who about the two who stand so solitary and defenseless on the mountain-top. Again it is shown that the unseen is the real, the invisible, the mighty.

"How changed the scene! These rocks, that lately lay Oppaque and dull beneath the azure sky, Are robed in glory that outshines the sun. Embattled legions gird the prophet round With blazoned banners and heaven-tempered spears. Horses and chariots, in whose fiery gleam, The monarch of Syria's army but appears. Like a dim candle in the noonday blaze, The mount is full of angels."

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

Benhadad and his secrets discovered, a parable of the human soul surprised that God can find it out. "This incident remarkably illustrates the omniscience of God. The Syrian monarch in the seclusion of his harem, in his palace at Damascus, as he gazes on his ivory couch, meditating his movements against Israel, speaks in soliloquy of his plans. The God that made the ear hears him in Damascus, and communicates the king's purpose to his servant, Elisha, in Samaria. * * * Lingers placed above the door of his lecture-room the motto, 'Live Guileless: God Observes You.' The slowness of the human heart to comprehend God is further indicated by the next story told by the Syrian king. He sends an army to make the prophet a prisoner. He had learned nothing in his failure to cope with the Omnipotence of God. He challenges Omnipotence. This effort to arrest the prophet sets forth at once the tenacity and impotence of the soul in its fight against God. * * * The ignominious servant well represents some believers when they find themselves beleaguered by temptations and unfavorable conditions. Too much literalism spoils the force of this incident. Horses and chariots only represent the forces of providence and grace which are available. Well said Felix of Nola: 'When God is a spider's web is as a wall; where He is not, a wall is as a spider's web.' There is a foregleam of the millennium in the prophet's merciful defense of his blinded enemies. He said to the king, 'Thou shalt not smile at them.'"

CAPTURING POLITICS FOR GOD.
(Laid by a Christian Office-holder.)
History records many well-meant efforts to make State and Church identical, to make the officers of the one those of the other also. The inevitable failure should teach the fallacy of it. The Kingdom of Heaven is not to supplant, but to permeate existing governments as streaming streams in to the house without removing a brick or timber.

OUR YOUNG WOMEN

are so often subject to headache—are languid, pale and nervous—because their blood is thin or insufficient. They are not really sick and hesitate to complain, but they lack that ambition and vivacity which is their birthright. They do not need drugs—but do need the tonic and nourishment in Scott's Emulsion that makes richer blood, fills hollow cheeks, suppresses nervousness and establishes strength. Nourishment alone makes blood and Scott's Emulsion is the essence of concentrated nourishment, free from wines, alcohols or opiates. If mother or daughter is frail, pale or nervous, give her Scott's for one month and see the betterment. It has a wholesome, "nutty" flavor. Avoid substitutes. At any drug store. ## PLAIN TALK TO VOTERS

Will This Direct Violation of the Wishes of the Taxpayers Be Passed Upon by the Newly Created Educational Board Without a Protest From the Taxpayers of the State?

(By Bob Acres.)
N. B.—This is a series of articles on Wisconsin politics written exclusively for the Gazette.

The man who hides his light beneath the bushel is not to be seen. I have no faith in the non-advertiser for it has been my business for years to dispose of advertised goods anywhere from the state to the coast. It has not always been the same line of product, but something similar. Incidentally, I have been interested in politics. That is my recreation. I have no money, no office, never expect to, and but for twice in my life never asked for an office for a friend. I was turned down both times.

I say this to assure my readers I am not selfish or an aspirant for any political job under the blue heaven before I go any further. I may also add that I spent some years at the state institution for the insane. I was in control, that I respect it. I honor it and revere its memory. I wish for its success in every line of its undertakings, but still, as a sane man, I have no desire to see a dollar in the shape of some returns for each dollar of taxes paid into the treasury of that institution.

I would not be party to any scheme to cripple its efficiency, but still I know enough of the inside workings of that institution to comprehend that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been absolutely wasted, not to mention the hundreds of thousands of dollars that might have been expended in other ways, giving the world the Babcock milk test or something of its kind, but merely for political expediency purposes. I am glad to voice my opposition.

With this in mind I am going to quote from the Wisconsin Efficiency Bureau report for October, 1915. It was placed in my hands a few days ago in a northern city and I read it over so carefully that I decided that it should be read, if possible, by the greatest number of people possible to give the public the real understanding of the university situation.

To go back a bit I might add that we had a long and tedious session of the Wisconsin legislature. They did accomplish much good, but they left much undone they could have done had it not been for the fact that a majority of the senate were of the "tax-exempt" class. I am glad that the majority had been elected on a republican platform calling for economy. That the democrats have also made their pledge for the same, though, did not mean that the election of republicans-democrats-socialists of the tax-exempt class to block any administration measure which looked toward economy in the least. For some months past a little pamphlet called "Everybody's Business" has been published at Madison. It has dealt with state affairs and the main message has been that time upon university matters. This last pamphlet, numbered 44, is on the university, and I want you to read it and see what you think of it yourself. You are taxpayers and you have a right to vote. You have a right to express your opinion and you should do so. I will say that Rock and Walworth counties were represented at the last legislative session by three assemblymen and one senator who worked for the interests of the taxpayer, but read what the university is now trying to do after the legislature has adjourned and see if you approve. The first sub-heading is called "The Emergency Fund," and it says:

"One of the last acts of the legislature was to pass a law creating an emergency fund any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated."

"This fund may be drawn on by any institution, department, board or commission on certification by the governor, the secretary of state, and the state treasurer that such money is needed to carry on properly the ordinary operation of such institution, department, board or commission."

"The fund may be drawn on only for operation expenses and proof as to need must be given."

"The principle of such an emergency fund is sound. The purpose is to provide for emergencies that may arise, to make available a sum that may be applied to any department of state activity where needs in excess of appropriation can be shown."

"An emergency fund is not for the purpose of giving institutions, etc., money which they are to use on spending which they are to provide for additional expenditures."

"The university survey report, the report of the state board of public affairs, reports and study by legislative committee, studies by the governor's office, all showed that the university was not using public funds economically. It was shown that there was waste in operation, inadequacy of organization, lack of economy in personnel, in several departments."

"The legislature recognized this and asked that the university direct its energy for the next two years, not toward spending more money, but toward spending more economically. What it was already getting. Improvement within the university rather than new addition was aimed at."

"The legislature did not ask the university to curtail its operation expense. Instead, it asked that it limit it to the basis of the preceding biennium plus a small increase. This was what was wanted in place of the large increase asked by the university."

"Instead of limiting expenditures to an appropriation, the university budget for 1915-16 provides for $135,000 operating expenditures in excess of the appropriation. This $135,000 it is asking the state board of education to secure for it. Thus, the university is attempting to secure by another means a large part of the increase that the legislature expressly refused to give it."

"The state board of education must pass the budget of all state educational institutions. The university budget is now in its hands. It has passed the salary items, but has not yet taken action which will determine whether it will request $135,000 from the emergency fund."

"If the board grants this request, it will then be passed on by the governor, the secretary of state, and the state treasurer. The governor, the secretary of state and the members of the state board of education."

"Shall the university be forced to observe economies or shall it be allowed to continue spending in excess of real needs? This is a question of interest to taxpayers."

"This is far more forceful than if I talked of national politics for it is a bit too soon, perhaps, to make up your mind on this subject, but not too soon to realize what the taxpayers would do to your state treasury if you gave half a chance at the funds paid in by the taxpayers. Think it over and then see what a position it places the governor in and watch for his action. BOB ACRES.

PARTIAL FAILURE OF THE ENGLISH INSURANCE LAWS

Lloyd George's Famous Insurance Act Breaking Down Because of War Financial Conditions.

(By Associated Press.)

London, Oct. 21.—The partial breakdown of the machinery of Lloyd George's famous insurance act for protecting the working classes against illness and unemployment, one of the incidents of the upheaval of financial conditions caused by the war. This scheme, with the old age pensions act, also linked with the name of the former chancellor of the exchequer, constituted the most important part of the program for social reform fostered by the liberal party. Both schemes were patterned upon the German system. The insurance act came into effect on the first of May, 1912, and the organization for its working had hardly been perfected when the war began.

Hostile critics of the plan predicted from the beginning that it would prove a failure. They now declare that the war has only hastened the inevitable development, while the supporters lay the blame upon war conditions. Handel Booth, M. P., presiding at a meeting of insurance experts this week, declared that the position of the act is critical, and others urged that parliament pass an emergency bill to amend it. Prospective beneficiaries fear that this will mean a reduction of the benefits they were promised in return for their compulsory contributions.

The employment of a great host of officials, and a huge staff of doctors, together with complications caused by the participation of benefit societies in industrial insurance companies, are held to be the principal causes for the failure of contributions and promised benefits to balance. Four separate commissions, one for each of the four kingdoms, each with a great clerical staff, and a cumbersome joint committee, were created for the administration of the act. The salaries of officials alone consumed $2,500,000 per year. Office rentals and stationery expenses also have eaten up a considerable percentage of income. Retrenchment in other items is the first measure of reform considered, and the amalgamation of the English, Scottish and Welsh commissions is proposed.

On its payment side the insurance act provided for contributions of eighteen cents per week for all persons earning $2.75 or less. Of this the workman, or woman, paid eight cents, the employer six cents and the state four cents. Free medical attendance at all times, an allowance during sickness of $2.50 per week for men and $1.75 for women for the first three months, and five shillings for permanent disability were the principal benefits, while a maternity allowance of thirty shillings for the mother of each child born was a popular feature.

The simple reason for the failure of the great enterprise to meet the expectations of its sanguine promoters is that expenses have far exceeded the original estimates. The building of a sanatorium and consumption at a cost of $7,500,000 was an important feature which has not been realized because of lack of funds to build. The doctors of the United Kingdom have profited greatly through the insurance act, according to popular belief. In the beginning there was a deadlock between the government and the British Medical Association over the terms of payment to the official physicians. Those chosen were to have several hundred people accredited to them at an annual rate of $1.50 per person, including drugs to be furnished by the doctors. The compromise gave the doctors a maximum of $2.25 per possible patient. The estimates of the total cost of medical attention under the act were about $8,000,000 for 14,500,000 persons, but the actual results are not known.

Before the insurance act came into force newly fledged doctors thought themselves fortunate if they could earn from $750 to $1,000 by assisting older practitioners, and for this they were expected to work very long hours. Under the act many young men are credited with earnings from $5,000 to $7,000, the fortunate ones being those whose surgeries are situated in the poorer class and working class districts. The doctors have strong counter balancing grievance in the slowness of the government to pay them. Most of the accounts for the year 1914 have not been settled yet.

CARE OF SEED CORN IMPORTANT THIS YEAR

This year of all years it is most important that the seed corn be properly cared for in order that every kernel may grow next spring, for there is bound to be a scarcity of corn for seed in Wisconsin.

Home Grown Seed Best. Many, of course, are imported from localities where conditions have been more favorable than they have been here, but even though the expense of getting the corn was no greater, it will not prove so satisfactory as to use home grown seed, for it is a well known fact that it takes several seasons for corn to adapt itself to new localities. Corn is more sensitive to changed conditions than any other crop. Authorities agree that no purchased corn can be so well adapted to home conditions as that which is developed on one's own farm, and provided one starts with a good variety. If a farmer has corn that ripened this season in this locality, he should by all means save seed and after saving it see that it receives the best kind of care.

Corn From Crib Would Not Grow. One farmer near Janesville desiring seed made a test of last year's corn from his crib, and although he selected bright, fine looking ears the corn would not grow. This shows the importance of special care for the preservation of seed.

Moisture Dangerous to Seed Corn. When taken from the stalk corn usually contains from 20 to 30 per cent of moisture that is likely to injure the quality of the seed. So the problem which presents itself is that of reducing this moisture to 10 or 12 per cent, which has been found to be the best for seed.

Because of this moisture the corn at first is likely to mildew unless properly cared for. For this reason the ears should be husked as soon as selected and placed in position where there is a good circulation of air and where they will not touch each other.

Do Not Leave Seed Corn in Piles. They should not be left in piles in the field or granary, for if weather conditions are favorable they mold very quickly. The farmer should not in his efforts to dry the corn go to the other extreme and make too great haste to rid the corn of moisture by hanging it in the sun, for the direct rays of the sun injure the vitality of the corn.

Sun's Rays Injure Seed Corn. Often in driving through the country we see ears hung on the frame of the windmill or under the porches with southern or western exposure, where the sun beats down warm. This is a dangerous practice and is likely to result in partial or complete failure when it comes to germination test.

Another danger from moisture is that of freezing. If the corn contains too great a percentage of water its freezing is likely to kill the germ. Hence it is necessary to protect the corn from hard frosts until it is thoroughly dried and even after it is dried it should be kept in a dry place or it may absorb moisture in sufficient quantities to cause mildew or freezing, according to the temperature in which it is kept.

Those who make a business of furnishing large quantities of seed corn find some special apparatus necessary in caring for it, but the ordinary farmer may find a safe place for his corn in the furnace room, kitchen, or garret, provided proper precautions are taken to prevent damage from mice. This is a very important point, for it is useless to take the trouble to save and care for corn unless it is kept from mice.

Rooms supposed to be free from mice sometimes prove not to be when used to store corn or other grain which naturally attract these pests. There are various devices for storing corn made with cord, tying the ears at a safe distance apart, or with wire or with boards and nails. These are illustrated in Circular of Information No. 18 of the University of Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment station, The Curing and Testing of Seed Corn. Another useful bulletin is issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Farmers' Bulletin 537, How to Grow An Acre of Corn, and another is Extension Bulletin No. Minnesota Farmers' Library. Another one is from Purdue University, Circular 25, How to Grow More and Better Corn; also Bulletin 415, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Seed Corn.

Question—When should apples be harvested?

Answer—This depends upon the variety. It is to be presumed, however, that the individual who asked the question above has reference to the so-called "winter" apples. It is time now to harvest these, and it should not be done as the writer saw it done the other day. A man in the tree was picking the apples and dropping them to the ground, where another man was picking them up. These were Northwestern Greenings, which properly should be kept until spring time. With such handling as they were receiving the apples were bruised by the fall and in some cases even though they are quite solid now.

Apples should be hand picked into baskets or other receptacle, and from them carefully placed in boxes or barrels where they are to be stored, sorting out the defective ones that they may not infect the sound ones.

WOULDN'T MIX.
Wife—I suppose there will be a crowd at our silver wedding next week and it might not be a bad idea to have a plainclothes policeman in the house.
Husband—No, my dear. It would never do to have a copper at a silver wedding.

BANKS ORGANIZED TO FLOAT THE WAR LOANS TO CONTINUE BUSINESS

(By Associated Press.)

Berlin, Oct. 22.—It is announced that the loan banks that were organized at the outbreak of the war in order to facilitate the raising of the huge sums needed to carry it on will not be wound up immediately after the conclusion of peace. This announcement has been made from a semi-official source for the purpose of encouraging the people to make liberal use of the banks in raising money to buy the new bonds now offered for subscription. It was feared that people would hold back from borrowing at the loan banks upon the assumption that they would be promptly closed at the termination of the war, and that in the liquidation of their affairs all outstanding loans would be called in at once.

The public is now informed that the banks will continue in existence for some time after the war, and that they will deal in a liberal spirit with borrowers, extending loans from time to time as may be found necessary. These banks have not been called upon to lend money to anything like the extent that had been contemplated when they were organized. While they have the right to lend to a maximum of $714,000,000, their actual loans outstanding at this moment are only a little more than one-third of that amount. Still more surprising is the fact that about half of the March was floated with very little assistance from these banks. The total amount of that loan, now all paid in, was $2,184,000,000 (at the normal rate of exchange), but the amount of it now held against securities hypothecated at the loan banks is only $70,000,000, which is less than 3 1/4 per cent. of the total. It is probable, however, that the new loan now undergoing subscription will cause greater pressure upon the loan banks than the two already brought out.

TRADE OF SWEDEN INCREASED GREATLY, ESPECIALLY TO GERMANY
(By Associated Press.)
Stockholm, Oct. 21.—Figures showing the exact increase in Swedish imports and exports since the beginning of the war and upholding the English contention that Sweden has acted as a valuable channel for the delivery of materials to Germany, have been obtained by a correspondent of The Associated Press. According to these statistics, which are as yet unpublished, and now available for the first time since the first six months of 1915 were over three times as large as her cotton imports during the corresponding months of the previous year. From January to June, 1914, Sweden imported 12,957,890 kilos of cotton. During the equivalent period this year, the import was risen to 109,928,031 kilos. Although cotton shows the most startling increase, the importation of other articles has risen considerably. Twenty-three million kilos of coffee have been imported in the first six months of 1915, against sixteen millions for the same part of the previous year. Cocoa beans have increased from 20 thousand to one million six hundred thousand during the same period of time. Lubricating and mineral oils have also shown increase.

While Sweden exported only 886,689 kilos of copper during the six months before the war began, she exported during the next six months 2,852,668 kilos. The figures given do not tell what portion of this export has gone to Germany and what portion elsewhere, but it is generally agreed that it has been sent almost exclusively to Germany. Figures regarding other exports are not now available.

Citizen's Duty.
Kant's categorical imperative may be expanded into these homely terms of duty: No one may do that which, if done by all, would destroy society. In other words, the individual must see that when the gaining of his own poor little happiness involves an injury to a great human ideal it is better to cut the happiness off and cast it from him than to do his part to bring the body politic to hell fire.
